

Jared & Sophie Callahan

Sophie is a 2nd year student at Candler School of Theology, where she is pursuing a Masters of Divinity with a concentration in Justice, Peacebuilding, & Conflict Transformation. She is co-president of the Social Concerns Network and works on campus as a liaison for international students. During her first year she worked with the weekly tutoring program at Northlake and is excited to dive deeper into the life of the church.

Having grown up in both Minnesota and Arizona, she found her way to San Diego when she attended Point Loma Nazarene University where she studied Sociology, Theology, and Spanish. After graduating, she worked in various non-profits and continued volunteering at her church as a youth mentor and missions director. The strong community there encouraged Sophie in her vocational discernment. So despite a love for the beach and burritos, Sophie and her husband Jared moved across the country last year to see what God had in store for them in Atlanta.

Sophie and Jared recently celebrated their 5th wedding anniversary. Jared, an ordained elder in the Church of the Nazarene, is a filmmaker, writer, public speaker, and all around creative and wonderful person. Together they enjoy traveling, trying out new restaurants, and baseball.
